CITY COMBED FOR TRACE OF TWO SUSPECTS WHO WRECKED S. P. LIMITED

Mexican camps in the Santa Fe freight yards and rooming houses in the Italian quarter on Standard avenue are being searched by police and W. O'Dodd, a Pinkerton detective today for traces of the two suspects who last evening dynamited a Southern Pacific passenger train at the Sixteenth street depot. The dynamiters are believed to have been either Mexicans or Italians.

SUSPECTS RELEASED

L. B. Chirley and William Lakoside, thought to have been implicated in the dynamiting because of the battle which they put up to Officers Lang, Sprague and Mahne following their arrest at the Southern Pacific depot last night have been released. Both men were given a thorough grilling by Detective O'Dodd this morning.

According to Conductor W. H. Brooks in charge of the train, two foreign looking men, supposedly Mexicans were noticed by him to get on at Pinole. Nine persons were hurt in the explosion. Police believe it to have been caused by black powder.

Mrs. Bullen, a milliner, 1224 Buchanan street, San Francisco, is positive that there was something mysterious about because a well dressed man stopped her from entering the smoker just as the train left Pinole.

"This car is no place for a woman," he said.

BOY GIRDLES GLOBE ON S. O. TANK STEAMER

Wendell Bouquet, 18-year-old son of John Bouquet, former constable at San Pablo, stepped ashore this morning from the Standard Oil tanker Richmond after circling the globe.

Just eleven months ago, Bouquet stored his luggage away aboard the tanker and set sail for New York, via Colon and the Panama canal. From New York the big tanker was rushed to the war zone with a $1,000,000 cargo of petrol. For six months the Richmond plied between New York and London. On her last trip across the Atlantic the Richmond received orders to return to San Francisco by way of the Suez canal.

Last night just at dusk the Richmond slipped through the Golden Gate with barge No. 91 in tow after a journey of 35,000 miles in which she girdled the globe and also broke the world's towing record.

Bouquet left the ship immediately after the ship tied up at the company's wharf and went to his home in Oakland.

BRITISH WIN IN SWEEPING DRIVE

HEADQUARTERS OF THE BRITISH ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, July 1.—Another tremendous British offensive was begun at 7:30 o'clock this morning. It covers a front of twenty miles north of the Somme and was preceded by a terrific bombardment which continued for an hour and a half.

Already the British have occupied several of the front line German trenches and have taken many prisoners. So far as is known, the British casualties have not been heavy.

The bombardment was of unprecedented intensity. Through clouds of smoke and dust hanging over the field as far as the eye could see, infantry in the region of the Somme swept the first German line.

The fighting continues, with no sign of abatement.

Trench mortars, firing thirty-five shots every minute, furnished great aid by cutting entanglements and destroying trenches.

A British staff officer who witnessed the junction of the French and British said the French approached the enemy as if on parade. The Anzacs conducted a raid Thursday night, capturing eighty Germans.

An ineffective German raid was attempted against the British west of the Lulle road.

The king's Shropshire light infantry raided and captured a number of Germans Wednesday night.

WEST SIDE HOME IS SOLD TO LOCAL MAN

The Gibson residence, a west side landmark was sold by H. G. Stidham, well known realty dealer to F. Gebhardt of Santa Rosa. The property has been owned by A. Odell for the past number of years. Gebhardt came to this city several months ago at which time he purchased the residence of James Cruikshank on Washington avenue.

Mrs. H. C. Stidham of the west side was a visitor in San Francisco today.

ITALIAN WHO FACES MURDER CHARGE HOLDS HIS SILENCE

Tony Blas, a gibbering Italian tailor, faces a charge of murder unless he can establish verifications for his movements during the past two years. Blas who is said by the police to have several aliases was arrested yesterday following accusations made against him by L. Foti, a barber, 620 Macdonald avenue. Blas is charged with having murdered Petro Guadagna, Foti's brother-in-law at Harrison, New Jersey.

The murder according to Foti was very queer. Blas the alleged murderer and Guadagna were partners in a tailoring business. Blas is alleged to have quarreled with Guadagna over certain financial matters, at which the former drew a knife and killed his partner. According to Foti the murder occurred two years ago.

Immediately following Blas' arrest last night the wires to New Jersey and New York were burning information pertaining to the Guadagna murder. The first reply arrived this morning. It read: "Chief Walker, Richmond:—We want Pietro Mosca or Nosa for murder at Mamaronck, N. J. Hold him, M. Welsenanger, sheriff Westchester county, N. J."

The telegram was dispatched to the local police from White Plains, N. J.

Police are awaiting further proof from the New Jersey authorities before placing a direct charge against Blas.

PETROL TANK EXPLODES IN QUEER BLAZE

Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin broke out in a Mexican camp at the rear of the Castle Gardens hotel near the Santa Fe shops last evening, doing $20 damage.

The fire started amongst a pile of rags beneath a rabbit pen. Fanned by a stiff breeze the flames spread to a nearby shed. A large can of gasoline in the shed furnished excitement for a few minutes following its explosion.

The alarm was answered by trucks 1 and 2.

Owners of the property were away at the time the fire occurred and it was with considerable difficulty that the blaze was finally extinguished.

CLUB SHINING UP FOR CELEBRATION

"Shine up for the Fourth" is the slogan of the Point Richmond Commercial club, who today sent a man throughout the entire west side business section to prepare business houses for the Fourth.

OUR MEXICAN POLIOY

President Wilson has never wanted war. In the days when his opponents attacked him and tried to goad him into the use of the armed forces of the United States, he remained steadfast to his determination that the blood of young American soldiers should never be shed except as the last recourse in the effort to uphold the honor of the nation.

Once, when even graver eventualities were threatened, the patience of President Wilson's statesmanship was rewarded by diplomatic victory that made the shedding of blood unnecessary. It was the president's previous moderation that gave such force to the ominous ultimatum which brought full concession to the rights of America and humanity.

No president in the history of the United States has ever placed the cause of the people of the United States upon a higher plane. No president has ever struggled more valiantly to preserve peace with honor. His critics have proved the case for President Wilson. Their unanimous approval of his present course has not dulled the edge of his desire for honorable peace.

The immovability of the President in the face of selfish and partisan criticism, coming from those who thought more of personal advantage than of the welfare of the nation, has been the best security of the American people throughout the time the world has been darkened by war-clouds.

If the sword of righteousness must now be unsheathed the American people know that it is because peaceful means have been exhausted. If the sword is raised to strike, it is because the head of the defacto government of Mexico refuses to respect the rights of America.

No president has ever tried so hard to interpret the real spirit of America. Mr. Wilson has said that he would rather know what the men and women, gathered around their own fireside, are saying than to listen to the oration of the self-appointed.

In his handling of the Mexican problem, President Wilson has been guided by the single impulse to do what the American people would have him do—to exhaust all the peaceful means at his disposal to protect the lives and property of Americans, and, failing in that, to uphold the honor and dignity of the nation by the use of its armed forces.

The note written by the state department to General Carranza in response to his threat to attack the American troops presented the complete case of the American government against Mexico. As in the European situation, when the ultimatum with its ominous note brought full concessions, it marked the end of President Wilson's patience.

The lives of the American soldiers in Mexico, soldiers who were sent there to protect the border from the raids of bandits, bent on murdering Americans, had been threatened.

In the night of righteousness, the sword of America was then raised to strike, and in the struggle that threatens, the nation enters upon its task with a clean and fearless heart.

Behind the president, who has so truly represented the charitable spirit of the American people, behind the president now in his grim determination to use the full military and naval strength of the nation in support of the American troops in Mexico, stand the mighty host of patriotic Americans, united, valiant and conscious of the faithfulness of their leader to the ideals of real Americanism.

THE TRAGEDY OF YOUTH

Those who have followed the newspaper accounts of the Orpet trial, especially the accounts published in the more sensational newspapers, cannot fail to have been impressed with the pitiful tragedy that it discloses—a tragedy not so much to the body as of the soul—a tragedy that was consummated long before the lifeless form of Marian Lambert was found in the snow at Helm's Wood last February.

Marian Lambert and Will Orpet were little more than children—she a high school girl and he a lad at the beginning of his college course. They were not products of the slums, but the children of self-respecting middle-class parents who were endeavoring in every way possible to see that they had every possible advantage. Their environment was one of culture, of refinement and for one of them at least of piety. To each of them there was every inducement to right living—none of the temptations that tend to drag down and degrade.

And yet we find between these two immature children a liaison that would bring the blush of shame to the cheeks of men and women twice their age. Letters to the dead girl from her sweetheart were offered in evidence which were described by one special writer as being "full of crude and brutal sensuality that dishonored even more the girl who received and treasured them than it did the boy who wrote them." These letters were tied with ribbons and were among the cherished possessions of poor, weak little Marian Lambert!

It would hardly be just to the parents of either the boy or the girl, to hold them responsible for the conditions that brought about this state of affairs. Doubtless they gave to their children all the tender solicitude and care that children ordinarily receive from parents. It is to be presumed that whatever mistakes were made were those of judgment and not of intentional neglect. The world is full of parents who take no better care of the moral welfare of their children than did the Lamberts and the Orpets.

But what is to be said of a society in which such conditions can exist? What comment is to be made upon the educational and religious environment whose influence fails to touch the moral nature to an extent that such a case as this would be impossible? It is not enough to say that the tragedy has its roots in the frailties of human nature, for it is the boast of our twentieth century civilization that under its influence the baser instincts of the individual are kept in check and the spiritual nature brought to its highest development.

After all the question whether Will Orpet murdered the body of Marian Lambert is of minor importance. The admitted fact is that a far worse tragedy had taken place before her body died. For this tragedy the boy now on trial for his life must bear much blame; the parents under whose upbringing the two young people received their early training are perhaps not wholly guiltless; but in the last analysis the greater part of the responsibility must fall on society—that vague, indefinite entity whose influence is all-pervading because it is the composite influence of every separate individual.

There are many other Will Orpets and Marian Lamberts. The searchlight of a sensational murder trial does not reveal the ugly tragedy of their lives, but the tragedy is there. What is society going to do about it?

NOTES FROM THE PLAYHOUSES

PANTAGES THEATRE

(Oakland)

Arizona Joe's complete wild west show on a theater stage, the most remarkable act of its kind in the history of theaterdom, is the attraction for the coming week at the Pantages theater. This remarkable spectacle, known as "The Rodeo of the Vaudeville Stage," puts over every big trick of the rodeos of California, which have achieved national fame, and in which the famous cowboy first made his name. "Pastimes of the Plains," as he calls the vaudeville act, is replete with sensations. Spirited bronchos are ridden on the stage. Cowgirls and cowboys show their tricks, and experts with the lariat perform wonders, such as lassoing three or four horses at once, trick tying and all the other western flourishes.

In the wonderful spectacle one may see every feature trick of a rodeo without leaving Oakland. The act has appeared all over the United States and Europe, where kings have held their breaths as the California and Arizona riders have gone through their daring tricks.

A notable bill comes to the Pantages for the coming week with this clever Wild West show, a whole show in itself. There will be one of the greatest tabloids of vaudeville history, "school days." Everyone has heard of this famous act, written by one of America's most famous popular song composers. Dolly Cliff, Albert Frank and six other clever youngsters are on the cast. Some famous songs, some new material, color, dances, and pure joy.

Scanlon and Press, late features with Waleska Suratt's "something different in song dance" will be another big feature of the Pantages show next week. They will appear in some specialties of their own. This clever pair has long been noted for originality, and the Pantages offering keeps up the record. Bob Capp and Chris Cornella in a medley of all that means joy. Cheater's famous posing dogs, in a ten thousand dollar posing act, Lillian Watson, the famous little comedienne, and two big picture features, "The Iron Claw" and "The Secret of the Submarine" round out the bill.

All owners of machines are asked to join in also and help to open our celebration in a befitting manner. The line of march will be announced by Senator Owens on Monday. "ALIEN SOULS" AT RICHMOND THIS EVENING

In keeping with the wave of preparedness which is sweeping over the country, the male portion of the Lasky company is preparing itself against possible invasion of the yellow peril. They have induced Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor to give them instructions in Japanese fencing and jiu jitsu. Hollywood druggists report an increasing demand for arnica, but when the Mongolian horde descends upon our shores they will be attacked in their own language by the valiant Lasky crew. Up to date the only one getting any pleasure out of the preparedness wave is Hayakawa himself. He takes great delight in throwing stalwart leading men and handsome juveniles through pieces of scenery in a most approved Japanese fashion. Hayakawa is to be seen on Paramount night at the Richmond theater tonight in "Alien Souls," a thrilling photodrama written especially for him by Hector Turnbull, author of "The Cheat" in which Hayakawa recently created such a success.

The Burton Holmes Travelogue and the Paramount Bray cartoons finishes off the very excellent bill for this evening.

The balance of the vaudeville program for Sunday include Lester Raymond, in a juggling novelty skit that's different; Edith Mote blonde, petite and entertaining; and the Musical Roberts, in ragging rag time musical selections.

GRIPPE EPIDEMIC SPREADING RAPIDLY

DRS. CHAN AND KONG SHOW THE WAY TO HEALTH

Within the last few weeks an epidemic of la grippe has spread with alarming rapidity throughout the United States. The gripe has long been regarded as a subject for jest, and it is only recently that the real seriousness of the illness has been made known to the public. Prominent among the leading physicians of the country who are waging an instructive campaign for the prevention and cure of la grippe is Dr. Chan of the firm of Chan & Kong, famous Chinese herb doctors. When interviewed, Dr. Chan said: "Preparedness should be the keynote of the public in warding off la grippe. As the United States is now building up her army and navy to insure immunity against war, so should the great American public build up its health to forestall the ravages of diseases such as la grippe. The only successful method, to my way of thinking, is to rely on nature for a cure. Medicinal teas made from natural grown herbs will build up your system and enable you to successfully combat la grippe. Why not turn, then, to the famous Chinese herb specialists, Drs. Chan and Kong—who are widely known as the most successful herbists?"

"If you are a 'Doubting Thomas,' we refer you to our letter files, where you can examine hundreds of testimonials that express the undying gratitude of those who have despaired of human relief before being cured by nature's herbs, administered by Drs. Chan and Kong."

"In order to educate the public to the correct way of combating la grippe, we offer one week's trial of our phenomenal teas at actual cost." Drs. Chan and Kong offer you this in the knowledge that you will be convinced. Offices, 901 Clay street, Oakland. Consultation and pulse diagnosis free to all. Office hours: Sunday 8-12. Daily, 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

WAR DAY TOURISTS HIT LONG TRAIL TO VISIT STATE NO. 49

TOYEN POLE, WRANGELL, ALASKA

Attn Island, in prospective state No. 49 is farther west of San Francisco than that city is west of Eastport, Me. Few realize that the Alaskan fjords equal those of Norway, that Alaska contains more than 500 immense and unmatched glaciers, some of them near neighbors to active volcanoes such as Wrangell, whose smoking summit forms the eastern end of a chain of living and dead lava peaks a thousand miles long. The climatic variations are great. The coldest month of Sitka is no colder than that of St. Louis. The warmest months of San Francisco and Juneau are of identical record. Pt. Barrow is 300 miles within the Arctic Circle and has no sun for 40 days of the year.

If he leaves Vancouver on a nine-day trip in a Canadian Pacific Princess steamer, the traveller wakes next morning to his first view of the Alaskan fjord country. Seymour Narrows ushers him into smooth, island-dotted waters that lead to Alert Bay, where he may see 50-foot totem poles and the cedar lodges of the Kwakiutis. Queen Charlotte sound is reached by evening and for the only time during the trip the vessel rides open water, while whales spout in the offing and the sharks sport in the last sunshine. Wrangell Narrows is a fascinating and pulseless shadowland, where the vessel goes too slowly through the winding channel to break the reflections of the midnight sun. In Sumdum Bay a hundred or more glaciers may be seen along the walls. The scenery is wild and the plunging bergs keep the fjord roaring like some vast foundry of the gods. Farther north, the Glacier stretches a mile wide, the largest of the forty-five ice streams emptying into Taku Bay. At the bottom of a 3000-foot mountain is Juneau, the capital of Alaska, a well-built city, although there couldn't be found a naturally level spot on which to place a single large building. Skagway is one day's trip up Lynn Canal. In the wild days of '98 Skagway was the door through which all the trail-hitters struck for the gold fields, taking the line of the present White Pass & Yukon Railway.

PRESIDENT IS AWAITING REPLY

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The de-lant statement issued at Mexico City yesterday by the Carranza government was construed today in Washington as being designed to force the United States into war.

Administration officials, while refusing to take official cognizance of the Mexican statement, accepted it as forecasting a flat rejection by Carranza of the demands made in last Sunday's ultimatum, although the statement itself was made in reply to the preceding note by this government.

This statement, together with other reports reaching Washington, and which indicate that Carranza has determined to stand by his orders to General Trevino to attack the American troops if they move in any direction but northward, convinced officials today that a break can not be averted.

Although not officially transmitted to the United States, government, the statement issued in Mexico City by Carranza, foreign minister was received in Washington as an insult. The fact that the communication was issued under the signature of Carranza's responsible minister and was a reply to an official note to this government gave the document a semi-official character.

The Mexican government's attitude as outlined in the statement published today and by other advices, apparently leaves President Wilson but one of three courses to pursue. First—He may order General Pershing to maintain his position in Mexico awaiting Carranza's threats to attack the United States troops if they do not withdraw.

Second—He may carry out his plan of going before congress to ask authority to use the American army and navy in Mexico and begin an aggressive campaign.

Third—He may withdraw troops from Mexico. As forecast in the dispatches, Carranza's reply to the American demands not only renews threats to attack American troops that dis-regard Carranza's orders against advancing into Mexican territory in search of bandits, but will renew the demand for withdrawal of the American expedition from Mexico.
